

Faculty Who Revised and Taught Courses

Revision and Development

During FY 2013, four courses were revised by a total of eight content experts.

- ENGL 2132- American Literature II
- SOCI 1101- Introduction to Sociology
- MATH 1501- Calculus I
- MATH 1401- Introduction to Statistics

Additionally, during fiscal year 2013, plans for the development of two English courses, American Literature I (ENGL 2131) and World Literature II (ENGL 2112), began. These courses are being developed by a total of six content experts and will go through approval stages for implementation in the near future.

Looking forward, six courses are scheduled for revision during FY 2014.

- COMM 1100- Human Communication
- PHYS 1211K - Principles of Physics I
- MATH 1101- Math Modeling
- ENGL 1102 - English Composition II
- MATH 1111 - College Algebra
- ENGL 1101- English Composition I

Assessment of Newly Revised/Developed Courses

eCore is planning to add an additional step to the course revision and development process. While faculty and the instructional design team traditionally perform a 5-Star Review of the course once it is finished, we will also ask that faculty teaching the course in its first live semester to submit a 5-Star Review at the midpoint of the semester. The 5-Star Review is an assessment of whether the course meets the highest standards of widely-recognized principles of good practice in five areas: Course Introduction and Information; Learning Materials/Content; Assessment and Evaluation; Instructional Design and Interaction; Course Technology, Innovation, and Accessibility.
